

ALL NATIONS BUT JAPAN SEND THEIR ACCEPTANCE

Plans For Time and Place of Allied Parley Now Uppermost in the Minds of Statesmen.

Washington, July 13.—France has formally accepted President Harding's invitation to the Powers to participate at Washington in his proposed conference on limitation of armaments and problems of the Pacific and Far East which menace world peace.

Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes authorized the announcement late Tuesday afternoon that a communication had been received from the American Embassy at Paris stating that the Government of France would be "very pleased to accept" the invitation tendered by the President of the United States.

The prompt and favorable response from France was a surprise to those advocates of disarmament in the Senate who have been fearful lest the inclusion in the program outlined by the President of land air as well as sea armament limitation might cause France to hesitate.

Yet France, despite her insistence that she must have large land defenses as a bulwark against Germany is the first to respond officially to the proposal of the President for discussion of general armament limitation.

The Administration confidently expects that formal acceptances will be received from all the Powers addressed within a few days, including Japan, who, in the minds of some domestic statesmen, might be inclined to parley before accepting, on the proposal that the problems of the Pacific and Far East be taken up for adjustment.

It was stated authoritatively that informal assurances of the acceptability of the President's invitation had been received already from "nearly all the Powers." Investigation disclosed that "nearly all" included Great Britain, France, Italy and China, leaving Japan alone yet to be heard from.

Japan's silence thus far is causing no concern, however, and the preliminary steps have been so favorably received that the Administration is beginning to think about the form of the official call for the conference and the time it shall be held.

SLATTERY WILL NOT BE FORCED TO RESIGN

Washington Dispatch Says Maysville Man Will Be Permitted To Serve Out Term.

A Washington dispatch says: Thomas D. Slattery, District Attorney for the Covington District of Kentucky, has won his fight for the right to serve out his four-year term and he will not be disturbed until his term expires next year.

Recently his resignation was called for and he refused point blank to resign. At that time the administration heads intended to oust him summarily, but on second thought it has been decided that the demand for his resignation would not be pressed.

The same decision has been reached in reference to District Attorney Gregory of the Western District of Kentucky, who was slated to be ousted, and he will serve out his term.

HALF TOBACCO CROP IN FAYETTE COUNTY.

The Lexington Leader says: Commissioner Luther Stivers, one of the largest tobacco growers in Fayette county, estimates that the Burley acreage in this county will not be more than half that of last year, he said Tuesday.

Last year Mr. Stivers has about 35 acres, but this year he has cut his allotment down to 35 acres and he expressed the opinion, in discussing the tobacco situation, that many other growers had made a similar reduction in their acreage, from the information that he has.

The growing tobacco crop, Mr. Stivers says, has been very much set back by the recent hot wave and the drought that has followed in its wake, and the prospect for a normal crop of the weed in this section is not at all promising.

TRANSPORTING LIQUOR.

The Fleming Gazette says: Sunday a man named Sparks, said to be the Sheriff of Robertson county, was detained here while passing through in an auto, charged with transporting a gallon of liquor. He was taken before the County Attorney, but was released, and may be required to come back later to appear before the grand jury.

KENTUCKY OIL MEN ARE LOOKING FOR BETTER TIMES

No Radical Change Is Expected But Expert Says It Will Ultimately Get Back to Normal Basis.

With the value of Kentucky oil production down to approximately one million dollars a month, less than one-third of its value eighteen months ago, oil men in the Kentucky fields are looking for "better times ahead," which many profess to foresee.

"Well informed oil men don't think there will be a radical change quick," Howard R. Levick, Jr., manager of the Associated Producers' Company's operations in this state, said. "Although all feel that the oil business in due time will be back in its stride."

There are a number of reasons for the price being the lowest in more than ten years, he said. Importation from Mexico is running around one-half million barrels daily, figures show production in the United States is greater than it has been in some time, and the market for refined products is almost at a standstill. The surplus oil in storage is said to be greater than at any time in a number of years.

Gasoline is the only product that is being consumed to any great extent. Consumption in May, this year, increased about ten per cent. over the same month last year. This is considered a normal increase, Mr. Levick said.

With prices for the crude product quoted at 90 cents a barrel for Somerset and $1 for Somerset light, producers cannot realize a profit, Mr. Levick declares. About eighteen months ago the Somerset grade was bringing $4.50 a barrel, with some refiners paying a premium in addition.

Pipe line companies have restricted their runs until every tank on a farm must be filled before the oil will be moved, according to Mr. Levick. Consequently, he said, additional loss is entailed by the producer through evaporation. The light oil in Kentucky evaporates rapidly and it is said as much as ten per cent. of a tank will be lost if it stands for any length of time.

There is comparatively little new production being brought in, Mr. Levick said, because of the low prices. Wells are being drilled only where necessary to hold leases. Old properties where the wells are affected by water and wells that are under vacuum are being pumped to save them, he said.

ANTI-CIGARETTE MOVE STARTS; NEW LAW NEXT?

Louisville. — The fight against the manufacture and sale of cigarettes in Kentucky is shortly to be launched in Louisville. Parkland women connected with the Women's Christian Temperance Union are taking the initiative in getting the campaign under way and have issued the edict, "The cigarette must go." It is believed the organization is preparing to launch an anti-cigarette campaign before the Legislature at Frankfort next January as part of a nation-wide cigarette prohibition movement.

FORMER FLEMING BANKER ARRESTED FOR EMBEZZLEMENT.

The Fleming Gazette says: Walter G. Smith, cashier of the defunct Sherburne Bank in this county, was arrested at Shelbyville Saturday, charged with embezzling the bank of Cropper out of $8,000 while acting as temporary cashier in the absence of his brother-in-law some time ago. The doors of the Bank of Cropper were recently closed because of bad management. Smith gave bond in the sum of $6,500.

CARLISLE MAN KILLED IN AUTO COLLISION

Auto Wreck Near Falmouth Kills One And Injured Two Other Members Of Family.

Falmouth, Ky., July 13. — One person was killed instantly and two others injured, one of them seriously when an automobile collided with a truck a mile east of here on the Cynthiana Pike Tuesday afternoon.

James Higgins, 45 years old, Carlisle, Ky., was crushed to death when the truck pinned the automobile against an embankment. Mrs. Higgins was bruised and suffered internal injuries. It was said she may die. Ruby Higgins, their 12-year-old daughter, was severely bruised.

They were returning to Carlisle from a visit to Covington. The collision occurred at a sharp turn in the road where weeds prevent motorists from seeing those approaching from the opposite direction. The truck is owned by Pendleton county and was being used on road work. Pete Cummings, Falmouth, was driving it.

NOT A CLEAN SWEEP.

While filming "Help Wanted: Male" Blanche Sweet's new starring vehicle which will be the feature at the Pastime Thursday evening, it was necessary for the company to "shoot" scenes around the beautiful summer resorts which surround Coronada beach. The entire company lived at an expensive hotel and used the grounds for the filming.

While there Blanche Sweet met an old friend, who was fabulously wealthy, but who was very careful when it came to money matters. One evening he invited the charming film star to dine with him. When the bill came, he paused and studied it with a sarcastic smile.

"See here," he said, "you've made a mistake in this bill."

"Oh no, sir!" apologized the waiter. "Yes, you have," said the gentleman and with a sneer he pointed to the total. "I've got more money than that," he said.

PADUCAH EX-MAYOR TO BE U. S. MARSHAL

Washington, July 13. — Thomas N. Hazell, Paducah, will be appointed United States Marshal for the Western Kentucky District. This was learned today from reliable sources. The appointment will not be officially announced for some time, it was said, but Mr. Hazell is known to have received the endorsement of Senator Richard P. Ernst and most of the other patronage distributors.

Local Knights Appreciate Publicity Given Their Big Picnic By The Public Ledger.

The following letter and resolution are self-explanatory. These are some of the things that make a newspaper man's life worth while, to know that your efforts are appreciated:

The Public Ledger, Gentlemen: — At its last meeting the Maysville Council, No. 1377, Knights of Columbus, in seeking an expression of its deeply felt gratitude to our esteemed friends, the staff of the Public Ledger, in contributing substantially by its press notices, to the success of its picnic at Beechwood Park June 30, ulto., has adopted unanimously the enclosed resolution. In drafting this resolution the committee feels that it only very feebly expresses the thanks of the Council in meeting assembled. However we are pleased to enclose herewith a copy of the resolution in accordance with the direction of Council.

GEORGE MCCARTHY, ROBERT B. WILLOCKS, FRANK P. O'DONNELL, Committee.

LIQUOR DEALERS' AFFAIRS IN PROBE

Dry Inspector To See If Wholesalers Are Obeying Disposal Order.— One Has 42,000 Gallons.

Affairs of wholesale liquor dealers in Kentucky are being investigated by prohibition agents, it was learned Tuesday on the arrival in Louisville of J. Sherman Porter and W. B. Stanfield, inspectors. Mr. Porter is chief inspector in Kentucky.

The liquor dealers are being required to disclose the amount of liquor on hand. Those who have no liquor are being forced to turn over their permits to the inspectors. Eight such permits have been collected.

The investigation was ordered by Sam Collins, State Prohibition Director, to discover whether the liquor dealers, whose business was proscribed in January, have followed orders to dispose of their stocks.

There are thirty wholesale dealers in the state, according to the inspectors. One Louisville dealer has 42,000 gallons of whisky on hand. Others have varying quantities down to 100 gallons.

The delay in carrying out the order to sell the liquor as soon as possible has been caused by large stocks of gin and brandy, the inspectors said. The market for these liquors is dull.

CHILD DRANK COAL OIL AND DIED

The Ripley Bee says:

A little daughter, 18 months old, of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Cahall, died Friday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John D. White, on Straight Creek. The death was caused from rather peculiar circumstances. The mother was giving the child a drink, which she supposed was water, but happened to be coal oil, a bucket containing it having been placed alongside the water bucket by the father, and the mother not noticing that she dipped into the wrong bucket and let the little one drink the oil which made it violently ill. Medical aid was called, but after several days illness, pneumonia developed and baby died. The funeral was held Sunday morning, burial at Pisgah cemetery.

CHECK WORKER GETS AWAY WITH $12 FROM GROCER

Check Offered By Stranger Is Cashied By East End Grocer Tuesday Evening — Flour Purchased Is Found Discarded.

Tuesday evening a strange young man appearing to be about sixteen or seventeen years of age entered the grocery of Mr. John Bolling in East Second street, Fifth ward, and purchased a small sack of flour and an ice cream cone. In payment for the purchase he offered a check for thirteen dollars which he claimed had been given him by a Mason county farmer for work. The purchase came to slightly over one dollar and to make the change even money, the grocer gave him twelve dollars in cash.

Shortly after the young man had left with his purchase and the twelve dollars in cash, the grocer began to investigate the check and he soon found that no such farmer lived in Mason county and that no such man had an account in any of the local banks.

The matter was reported immediately to the police who started an investigation. They had little clews upon which to work but soon found that the sack of flour which the young man had purchased had been thrown away by him when only about a square from the store. This leads the police to believe that the youngster who worked the deal was a professional check worker.

Other East End grocers report that a young man with a check for thirteen dollars had tried to get them to cash the paper during Tuesday afternoon but they had all refused him.

The young man has not been located and is expected by this time to be many miles from Maysville.

Is this a time to be letting up on the efficiency of farming? A thousand times No! That would be yielding to a penny-wise, pound-foolish policy.

Yield is the big thing today. A certain yield from the land must first pay the fixed expenses—such an investment in land, interest, taxes, or rent, depreciation on equipment, etc.—to break even. For profit, the yield must go higher.

OUR POLICY:

To support such measures as are unquestionably for the good of Mason County as an entire community, rather than such propositions as are in favor of the individual interest, or of one section as against another. And likewise to earnestly and consistently oppose all things that are not for the good of the county as a whole.

EDUCATIONAL CAMPAIGN AGAINST CRIME.

A candidate for commonwealth's attorney in one of the counties of Eastern Kentucky declares for "prevention of crime by going among the people between terms of court, speaking at their churches and schoolhouses, with the endeavor to inspire them with the right consideration of the duties and requirements of good citizenship and get them to pull together for the promotion and more wholesome respect for and obedience to the law."

This sort of a campaign is quite novel. It is in no way considered the duty of a commonwealth's attorney to conduct an educational campaign against crime and yet there may be some merit in the proposition.

Educational campaigns against crime should be carried on among the youth of the land in our Public Schools and in every other manner in which the youth can be reached. It is in the years of childhood that the most lasting impressions for good are made and while the home is the proper place for such a campaign to be waged, in many instances, the home is not the place it should be and the child is trained in crime instead of educated against it. In such instances our public schools and such juvenile courts as the justly famous Judge Ben Lindsey presides over, make the most lasting impression for good and against crime.

BASEBALL AS AN ADVERTISEMENT.

There are many ways to advertise a town but one of the best systems of community advertising we have seen is through a good baseball team.

Maysville probably received more favorable advertising during the period she had a club in the Old Bluegrass and Ohio State Leagues than at any other time in the past fifty years.

Maysville's semi-professional club played baseball at Paris recently and we saw accounts of the game in five different newspapers published in Kentucky and Ohio cities—all of which was good advertising for Maysville such as could not be purchased.

Chambers of Commerce, conventions and many other things could be considered as good town advertising but nothing is a better advertiser than a good baseball club.

Let's get behind our club for the balance of this season and help them line things up for some real baseball next year. The Maysville team should, by all means, be entered in the proposed semi-professional championship series for Kentucky.

BANKRUPTCY IS A RARITY.

The involuntary petition in bankruptcy filed against a local concern on Saturday reminds us that this is a very rare occurrence in Maysville or Mason county. It has been several years since there has been a bankruptcy case involving local concerns or individuals.

Maysville and Mason county business is on a very firm basis. No more solid concerns can be found than are to be found in this section. Our bankers are among the best in the state and matters financial are handled on a very high plane.

The pressure of re-adjustment after the war has been felt in Mason county and North-Eastern Kentucky as strongly as it has been felt in any part of the country, perhaps. The farmers of this section, who are the bone and sinew of business, did not have what could have been considered a successful year last year and yet business has been as good here as most any place and better than in many places.

It has been many months since a bankruptcy case and let's hope that it will be many more before another.

Silk shirts and fancy prices are said to be scorned by the average buyer, the autumn styles for men will be conservative. The depression has produced something pleasant, anyhow. It's not so long since cotton clothing and grass shirts were the insignia of aristocracy.

The first split over the tariff bill concerns the dye schedule. This gives color to the surmise that it would be difficult to blend legislative opinions.

Most styles come from France, we are told. Wonder if the rolled stocking style came from Paris. It sure took Maysville by storm.

EVERY GOOD CITIZEN SHOULD BE POLITICIAN

All Citizens of America Should Be Interested in Political Affairs of the Nation.

Washington. — "There is more than a mere platitude in the remark of John T. Adams, chairman of the Republican National Committee, that 'Politics is the art and science of government. In a republic like ours it is the noblest occupation of citizenship and he who withholds himself from its activities is a peacetime slacker.'

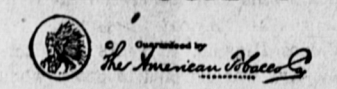

"Mr. Adams was clearly not using the word 'politics' in the sense in which it is most commonly used. The science and art of government is something altogether different from the manipulation of elections for the promotion of one's own self interest. The participation in politics which Mr. Adams had in mind begins with the individual's own mental processes in which he ascertains facts and draws sound conclusions, afterward putting those conclusions into practical effect if possible by influencing legislation and administration, which, of course, includes the election of proper men to office. Elections are only one, but none the less essential step in the practice of the art of politics."

"There are some people who seem to take a personal pride in proclaiming themselves free from politics. Their boast is not a worthy one, even if they allude merely to politics in its narrowest sense, for practical politics never brought to the highest standard until men of the highest ideals take an active part in its affairs. This does not necessarily mean that practical politics will be fit subject for reproach until it shall be under the control of men of the highest ideals. Unfortunately, it frequently happens that men of the highest ideals are very impractical in the means they adopt to secure desirable ends. In a government of, for and by the people, we cannot have government by idealists alone."

"The composite citizen is made up of millions of individuals, each dominated in most cases by self-interest. But because of the difference in the personal equations of the individual units making up the composite citizen, there is a corresponding difference in the interests dominating said units, and while composite action is taking place, friction is developed, attrition results, selfishness is worn away, and general welfare is substituted before action is accomplished. Such will be the result if all citizens take an active life."

part in politics—the science and art of government. If a few, through laziness, false pride, or whatever other motive, withdraw themselves from participation in the tasks of government, the result must be better or worse according to the character of the men and women who remain inactive.

"At a time when bolshevism is destroying a nation unsurpassed in natural resources and possibilities and seeking to gain a foothold in our own nation with its resources only half developed, Mr. Adams could have uttered no more pertinent sentiment than his declaration that politics is the noblest occupation of citizenship and that he who withholds himself from its activities is a peace-time slacker. The nation needs its best and ablest citizens actively at work teaching sound economic doctrines, in season and out of season, and securing the practical adoption of those doctrines by nominating in the primaries and electing at the polls men who are sincere advocates of the general welfare as distinguished from any local, class or selfish interest."

New York Letter

by
Lucy Jeanne Price

New York. — Every once in a while it actually happens — the story of the impoverished artist to whom comes fame and fortune just as he is about to be turned starving into the streets. And so it happened to Frank Schwartz. He had just two more days to stay in his two room flat on East Nineteenth street, when the postman brought him the letter announcing that he had won the 921 Grand Prix de Rome with his canvas "Heroism." His story is the kind you find more often in romantic fiction. There was the time when he attended art school in Chicago and had an offer of a position as instructor there. But the war intervened. After the war he was ill. As soon as he was able, he used to make the rounds of the district tea rooms with bristol board and pencil, offering to do heads of the patrons. They were highly lean days, but when the competition was announced for the Prix de Rome, the artist put aside all of his "pot boilers" and worked at his painting. He had no money for his rent, so devotedly did he give himself to this one piece of work. "But my landlord, is a good scout," he says, "and let me stay. Finally he couldn't wait any longer and I had to get out within the next two days, when this letter came. My landlord will be pretty nearly as glad as I. He knew what I was working for." The prize carries with it a three years course at the Academy of Architecture and Sculpture in Rome.

Miss Millie Gade who swam all the 43 miles around Manhattan Island the other day in a non-stop swim is disturbed over only one thing. The pier at which she completed the circuit is so high above the water that she could not reach it to pull herself up and when she stretched her arms, waiting friends grasped them and pulled her in. Now she is worried for fear some one will think that was because she was tired — after a simple little swim like that. "No, I was not fatigued at all," she declares. "I just couldn't reach. I should hate to have anyone think the swim had tired me."

Rex Ingram, the motion picture producer, is about to buy himself a medal. He thinks he deserves something bright and shiny to wear; because the degree of bachelor of arts has been conferred upon him by none other than Yale University, in recognition of his direction of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." This is the first official recognition of the screen as an art by any university or college. And we would say that Mr. Ingram, who was formerly a student at Yale, has the medal coming to him.

Either our criminal class is cultivating its manners and becoming genteel — almost polished, in fact — or else more naturally gentle and courteous people are entering our criminal class. Anyway, the two thieves who felled John Varvarigo, a watchman in a Brooklyn restaurant, put a bag of sawdust under his head, in order that he might rest more comfortably, after they had bound him and taken his $10; and then they set a glass of water where he could reach it with his bound hands. After the old-time, Robt. Hood flavor of this gallantry on the part of highwaymen, it seems almost unromantic to add that John was later rescued by a doughnut man.

No one need try to tell Samuel C. Orne, truckman, that military patriotism is dying. Being entirely practical when he is trucking, he started to protect a piece of furniture he was taking from the Navy recruiting station the other day by wrapping it in the only article he had handy — the American flag. It took two policemen to rescue him from the mob, which included several ex-service men.

The first purely scientific and psychological stud poker game in the history of that uncertain game was staged the other night at Columbia University; and by two of its most learned professors, Prof. Albert Johnson, M. A., and Prof. Joseph Holmes, M. A., research directors of the university's famous psychological laboratory. They proved beyond any gamble in the world that science has it all over marked cards or any other of the sure-thing methods practiced by shaps hereofore. Six students who at some time in their lives had become acquainted with the game were given special dispensations to play ten-cent limit stud poker in the very heart of the university in order to demonstrate how a recently perfected little machine registers every emotion no matter how skilled one may be in concealing it from his face. The professors proved beyond a doubt that the better hand the faster revolved, the cylinders, which were showing the effect of the game upon the subject's heart.

WRAPPED ICE REDUCED ICE CHEST EFFICIENCY.

Wrapping ice in Newspapers to retard melting is the result of a mistaken idea and prevents a free circulation of cool air through the refrigerator chambers, according to home economic specialists from the College of Agriculture. This suggestion is included among a number given by the specialists to housewives on the care of the refrigerator during the summer. This piece of household equipment is often neglected, they say, with the result that ice is wasted and unpleasant odors and disease germs permitted to contaminate the food.

"A thorough study of the construction of the refrigerator and circulation of air through it until all the details concerning it as well known is the first requisite in proper management of the ice chest.

"The first step in keeping the refrigerator clean and sanitary is to use clean ice if it can be obtained. The next is to clean up at once any food spilled on the walls or shelves of the refrigerator. Washing the refrigerator once each week with cold water and soda and wiping it dry after cleaning are necessities.

"The drain pipe also needs particular attention and should be removed twice each week, cleaned with hot soap suds and scalded. It should not be replaced until cool.

"Have the ice man leave one or two large pieces of ice rather than several small ones as the larger pieces last longer.

"Keep the ice box well filled. Cooling off a warm refrigerator wastes a large amount of ice. Keep clean, stoppered bottles of drinking water on ice rather than use ice to cool the water.

"Know before you open the door of the refrigerator just what you wish to remove, take it out quickly and close the door."

It is a fact not generally known that Queen Elizabeth of the Belgians is the namesake and goddaughter of the murdered Empress Elizabeth of Austria.

MOVING PICTURES.

Was it in your state that the censors decided
That a perfect lady must not say to her husband: "If we only had a little one of our own?"

That they cut out, in that good old classic of childhood, "Alice in Wonderland," the picture of the knave stealing the tarts?"

That the Board said the clergymen were all wrong when the called "The Miracle Man" one of the greatest of pictures and moral lessons, which "demonstrated what the movies could do for the betterment of the community," and barred the picture on the ground that "it dealt with lust, prostitution and sexual immorality?"

That they wouldn't let Edgar's day spank him in one of those Edgar comedies that you giggle over? Booth Tarkington told us how they used the scissors on this one.

That they decided if you wanted to see a bank robbery you would have to take the time to walk down Main street? Anyway, they wouldn't let Tommy Meighan's new picture, "Frontier of the Stars," be shown because it had one. Too bad that the police aren't as efficient as the censors.

That "Carmen" was barred unless the lady didn't die on the screen? There were two states that said they couldn't have a man shoot a lady on their screens, though they admitted that if it had been the lady at the trigger they wouldn't have been so firm. Of course that the story was a classic had nothing to do with it. The question is, how does these opera get by?

That the proud new father in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" couldn't announce "It is a boy," but had to say instead, "The boy is better." Now, I ask you!
That the ministers are wondering what would happen if the Board of Censors passed on their texts, ever since they cut out as IMMORAL from "The Eternal Magdalene," the titles, "Let Him Who is Without Sin Among You Cast The First Stone," and "Neither Do I Condemn Thee. Go. Thou. And Sin No More?"

That they forbade the near view of a farm-hand milking, also his squirting milk into the farmer's eyes?

Hiding!

Newlyweds aren't especially keen on having a pile of folks come around and talk about everything under the sun from biscuit dough to slinging pies in a movie. Buster Keaton and his bride, Natalie Talmadge, are just like other human beings. The youthful Keatons are in Hollywood now, but you can just bet they are hiding from the colony of film celebrities who would fall drop in2 to wish them "many happy returns of the day." Buster is going to begin work on a new comedy soon; Natalie, according to Buster, isn't going to have anything to do with the pictures. Still, we have a suspicion that if Natalie wants to play around with a picture or two, Buster's stern resolve will melt like butter on a sultry afternoon in July!

Marriage. Before Proposal.

Bumped into pretty little Ruth Dwyer, leading lady for Eugene O'Brien in his new picture. She looked so cool and chipper in a sweet or-gandie frock. "How come?" quote we. "I'm on my way to be proposed to," she retorted. "I was married yesterday," she calmly enlightened us further. "Today I shall be proposed to. Bye." And she tripped on her merry way, leaving us rather open mouthed at her inconsistent announcement.

Bessie Barriscale announces her intention to return to the stage. It's just like returning to the old home down on the farm, to Bessie, for the stage is her first love, and first love, of course is lasting — sometimes. Bessie has certainly made a slew of pictures during the years she has been starring. She'll probably return to the land of the kilgus, one of these days.

An Eleven Year Old Leading Man.

If you wear eleven years old, wouldn't you be highly thrilled at being Mary Pickford's leading man? That's precisely what little eleven year old Charles Hutton is. He plays opposite the irresistible Mary in her new picture, "Little Lord Fauntleroy," from the old, enduring popular story by Frances Hodgson Burnett.

From the bewildering to the ridiculous, or whatever you will. We discovered Elaine Hammerstein perched on a chair in a crowded courtroom swearing on the Holy Book to answer truthfully what questions might be fired at her. Then Director Ralph Ince rose to say that she swore simply fine and the scene was O. K. We scurried up closer to get swearing lessons, but that was over. Better luck next time.

A Westerner in the Lead.

Niles Welch came out of the West, landed in the heat of New York, and decided to be a leading man in a studio where the temperature usually shot around 100 degrees F., or something just as cool. Elaine Hammerstein wanted a crackerjack leading man, so Niles was it. He was in the courtroom scene, too, but didn't get a chance to display his swearing versatility. (N. B. —We were tardily informed that all swearing in this picture was strictly according to legal proceedings. That lets us out, folks!)

Cleveland, Ohio, July 13. — A mob, consisting chiefly of women and girls in gay summer finery, stormed the court house here today attempting to break down the doors to the room where Mrs. Eva Catherine Kaber, charged with plotting the murder of her husband, is scheduled to tell the details of her career. The accused woman was brought into court on the verge of collapse and may not be able to take the stand.

Testimony by alienists as to her mental condition is expected to complete the defense's case. There is a possibility that arguments will begin late today and that the case may be given to the jury Thursday.

LAMBS DID NOT BRING EXPENSES

Virginia Farmer's Shipment of Lambs Lacked 25 Cents Paying Their Expenses.

Louisville, Ky. — Publication by a newspaper in McClean county of the statement that a Virginia farmer shipped a load of spring lambs into the New York market to be sold and a few days later received notice from his broker to remit seventy cents as the animals brought that much less than the charge has stirred the Louisville Live Stock Exchange to comment on the desirability of the farmer utilizing discrimination in shipment.

The Exchange is vitally concerned because of the discouragement such reports cause in regard to the present movement for better bred and more livestock which the Exchange, the University of Kentucky College of agriculture, the Kentucky Purebred Livestock Association and the United States Department of Agriculture are promoting.

Particularly does this report apply to the better grade sheep campaign and as effecting the Farmer's Better Sire Sale of 200 pure bred bucks and ewes and 2,000 high grade ewes to be held at the Bourbon Stock Yards August 11 under the sanction and approval of those mentioned above.

Decided improvement in prices is indicated, the Exchange says, if the farmers will offer quality animals on the market, for quality pays even when trade is dull. Breeding of better grade sheep will bring a big return experts of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture declare in support of the statement by the Exchange. With the selection of the proper market and study of its price movement the former will be enabled to get satisfactory returns all the authorities agree. In this the United States Department of Agriculture agrees with the Exchange adding that distance of haul and time are important factors in livestock shipments.

JESSAMINE MAN IS KILLED IN FIELD

Robert Lunsford Gives Himself Up To Sheriff, After Shooting Brown Jasper Through Heart.

Lancaster, Ky., July 13. — Brown Jasper, 26, of Jessamine county, was shot and killed Tuesday afternoon by Robert Lunsford, 34, while the two men were working alone in a hay field on the farm of Charles Dietrich, in the northern part of the county. After the shooting Lunsford went to Bryantsville, informed relatives of his act, and gave himself up later to Sheriff Arch Walker, of Garrard county.

Lunsford said that the trouble arose when Jasper accused him of being a thief, and threatened him with a pistol, claiming that he shot Jasper in self-defense. Only one shot was fired, and that pierced the heart of the victim. Further than this Lunsford refuses to discuss the tragedy.

The only witness of the shooting was an 18-year-old son of Charles Dietrich, owner of the farm, who was in a nearby field. Young Dietrich said that he was so far away from the two men that he would make no statement concerning the shooting.

Jasper was single and lived with his widowed mother in Jessamine county. Lunsford is a farmer and lives in the northern part of Garrard county.

HERBS USED IN MEDICINES.

A Manchester, England, paper urges the renewed cultivation of old fashioned medicinal herbs in English gardens. In the United States they have also gone out of fashion as a feature of the small garden, although they are imported in large quantities from Turkey, India and China, where they are grown purely for commercial purposes as their medicinal value is recognized by many leading physicians. Tons of medicinal herbs are used annually in the preparation of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most successful medicine for woman's ills. It contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and women afflicted with such ailments should try it.

REMAINS HOT.

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 13.—Although the Weather Bureau predicted partly cloudy weather, no change in temperature was promised. Temperature went from 69 to 76 degrees between 7 and 10 a. m.

During the past 50 years only two hot weather periods on record show prolonged high temperatures exceeding the present torrid spell. In 1881 the temperature went to 90 every day from July 3 to July 17. In 1901 the thermometer registered 90 daily between July 14-30. Three more days must be added to the present period to break records.

SMALL VIAL AND HAND-KERCHIEF ARE CLEWS

Chemist Examines Clews On Ohio Farm To Investigate Kentucky Mountain Girl's Murder.

Middletown, Ohio, July 13.—Police turned over to a chemist for examination today a small vial containing several pellets and a handkerchief, which they believe is bloodstained, found on the Mueller farm late yesterday. A squad of police dug in several places on the farm in the hope of finding the body of Laura Fletcher, 18, believed murdered. A bloody skirt and woman's shoe were found last week.

The vial and handkerchief were found beneath a bush where, police say, the ground appears sunken and may possibly be a grave. They expect to dig there some time today.

According to Edward Chamberlain, who lived on the Mueller farm in December and who now is being held in jail at Portsmouth, Ohio, on a theft charge, Laura Fletcher left his home in November for Cincinnati.

He said he talked with the girl in January at her home in Frozen Creek, near Jackson, Ky.

Frozen Creek is far back in the Kentucky hills and so far authorities investigating the girl's disappearance have been unable to communicate with the girl's family.

Police Chief Byrd, Middletown, says if he cannot get word from the girl's family he will take enough men to the farm to turn over every foot of ground on the farm.
